MAGIC CARPET

SEND IN THE DOVES

ing from the computer."

Political cartoonists must seize the moment before the issue or controversy is gone from public consciousness. "If I don't do it right away, the issue might be done. So when I send you guys a cartoon and I don't see it in the next issue, I'm really disappointed."

Wittenberg hasn't given up being published in other publications that might have a budget for content. "I have high hopes of getting in somewhere. I always ask, 'Do you know somebody who knows somebody — in the magazine business?' I go through waves of sending out five or six packets of information and sample cartoons, and then the wave ebbs when I don't hear anything back or I get a rejection. From Ms. I never hear anything back: They just don't respond.

"I would like to see myself doing it more. I'm definitely a lesbian cartoonist, but I sometimes feel badly for not coming up with more cartoons for our community," Wittenberg says.

"The reason for my being a cartoonist now is all the support and encouragement I received in the early days from CommonWoman. I credit CommonWoman and all of us for making that space." ▼
