R.U.1.2? Dinner: Bon Appetit!

The R.U.1.2? Queer Community Center annual fundraising dinner and silent auction will spotlight Vermont transman and author Eli Clare as the keynote speaker. The dinner will be held on April 16 at the Wyndham Hotel (formerly the Radisson) in Burlington.

Clare is the author of Exile and Pride: Disability, Queerness, and Liberation (South End Press, 1999), and has been a trans and disability activist for the past several years. He is currently a staff member at the LGBTQAA Services Center at the University of Vermont.

About half of the money received in conjunction with the dinner goes toward meeting 10 percent of the center's general operating budget.

The center's budget increased substantially with a major grant from the Vermont Department of Health to fund an AIDS prevention program. The funds allow us to expand the "Health and Wellness Program" beyond its current anti-smoking and chat-room safe-sex information activities. Shawn Lipenski has been hired as a fulltime staff member to coordinate the program.

The program will focus 80 percent of its time and resources on AIDS prevention specifically directed at men who have sex with men,

15 percent on tobacco cessation for all community members and concentrating on 'cultural competency training' for healthcare practitioners through the Vermont Diversity Health Project, and 5 percent on other projects. The center, which currently has five part-time and full-time employees, is awaiting the results of grant applications to fund women's health projects. ▼
