My dear Mr. Marsh

I see by the paper that Lord Acton is reported to be in Florence. I want to get a note to him, but I do not know his address. I venture therefore, to enclose it to you, and ask you to have it sent to him, - and I trust you will excuse me for giving you this trouble.

The prospect for France seems to me to grow darker & darker. When the compass of war is removed there are likely to be such civil troubles as will make the foreign invasion seem but a slight evil.
