Dear Father

I now find myself verry comfortable and wil try I write you a few lines, as I am acting as orderly for the Colonel and while he is gon to the street, ^{to dinner} I wil buisy my self in writing to you, I am in his tent all a lone without any one to jiggle or disturb, I have got nearly over my cold and am feeling quite well.
I expect that we are to leave here soon tomorrow or next day, we shal go to New York and there take shiping to the far south, I suppose that Lyman
