

VERMONT SOLDIER.

(No 10)

When our country was all confusion, VERMONT BOYS came to the conclusion,
 That down to WASHINGTON they would go,
 And rout the rebels, their country's foe.
 So down we came—the track was clear—
 The rebels left on account of fear That McCLELLAN he would take command, And VERMONT BOYS would lead the van!

Head-Quarters 4th Vermont Regiment,
 Co. B

Camp Griffin

Jan. 29th 1862

Dear Friends & Family

Miss Louisa

Kind letter No 9

was duly rec<sup>d</sup> two days ago I have just come in from a foraging expedition two miles into the South country for rails the result was 14 for big rails we are not allowed to burn fences here but as no wood is furnished us we tear down the fences and then burn the rails that we find afterwards
 The result of this kind of