

The Out in the Mountains Staff...

...Celebrating their upcoming 2 month Vacation!

IT'S TIME FOR OUT IN THE MOUNTAINS' SUMMER VACATION... SEE YOU IN THE FALL!

Commentary from page 11 for her. Express concern about what this will mean in her life, but don't try to solve all the ramifications today. For now, the whole idea is to let her know that this has nothing to do with who she is, but everything to do with who you are. That no one is to "blame" and nothing can change it.

Offer sympathy for the pain this knowledge causes her, but do not apologize for being gay. Be ready and willing to gently repeat the words, "I love you and I'm gay," as many times as it takes to get through her initial denial, one of the several stages she will now go through. Let her know you are ready to lovingly work together to cope with the transition that will occur in your relationship.

In the September issue: What reactions to expect from her.

in italics K.K. Wilder is writing a book about women who love gay men. Write her at 17 N Champlain St. #3, Burlington, VT 05401 or call (802)658-0448.
